DENOUNCES HUSBAND'S CHOIR ACCUSATIONS

The Rev. Harry Dwight Miller, paster of Hanson Place Methodist Episconal Church, Brooklyn, yesterday received a letter from Mrs. Clifford T. Graham repudiating her husband's criticisms of the choir activities of the church. Graham's objections to the church were made during a court proceeding in which Mrs. Graham charged her husband with disorderly conduct and with impairing the morals of their children. He is now being held in ball for trial in Special Sessions.

"It seems hardly worth while to answer the statements of a man of this type," said the Rev. Miller yesterday. "Yet I cannot refrain from pointing out the gross injustice of his statement that undesirable men from the Long Island station 'make dates' with young women of our choir after rehearsals. ## Yesterday Greatest Day in History, Says Bishop

HIS is the greatest day the world ever saw," declared Bishop Luther B. Wilson in an address yesterday before the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Newark.

"Congress," he said, "has ratified the last of the treaties agreed upon in the Washington Conference for the Limitation of Armament and the settlement of Pacific problems, and in addition to this the north and south of Ireland have signed treaty that should bring peace to that country."

It was announced that since June, 1919, Methodists have contributed $40,768,340 to the church treasury for its centenary program.

Reasons for discontinuing the vocal concerts and substituting religious speaking could not be obtained from the officials of the association, but it was hinted that as few great artists are likely to be in America this summer it would not be possible to arrange programs.

It is generally understood, however, that the cost of providing artistic programs has become so great that it no longer can be borne by the association.
